11th. November:

Places of Peace celebrated the Poppy Day

On the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918 ends the World War I and the Poppy Day (also known as Remembrance Day) is observed on 11 November to recall the official end of the hostilities.

Today, members of ENPP across Europe laid red flowers in memorials of World War I or in cemeteries where lie the remains of its fighters.

Altransträdt (Germany), Trencin (Slovakia), Wageningen (Netherlands), Sofia (Bulgaria) and Evoramonte (Portugal) were some of those places.
